Do any of these committee members have potential conflicts of interest?

A conflict of interest occurs when someone is in a position to make or influence a decision about a grant or award that could benefit them, their family, their business, or an entity in which they serve in a paid or voluntary leadership or advisory position.

For each Rotary member who serves on the grant committee, list all relationships that the member has with any scholarship recipients, cooperating organizations, project vendors, or other individuals or organizations that will benefit from the grant.

No

Next, list all relationships that district officers and other members of the sponsor clubs or districts (other than the members of the grant committee) have with any award recipients, cooperating organizations, project vendors, or other individuals or organizations that would benefit from the grant.

Project Overview

Tell us a little about your project. What are the main objectives of the project, and who will benefit from it?

Trauma is one of the major causes of mortality and morbidity globally, and the early identification of life-threatening injuries is crucial for initiating prompt interventions. Trauma care providers must rely on quick, accessible and effective diagnostic tools to optimize patient outcomes (Iyengar et al., 2023).

Low and moderate-income countries (LMICs) face numerous challenges in the provision of healthcare services to their populations. The World Health Organization (WHO) estimates that 60% of the world's population does not have access to basic x-ray, computed tomography scanners or other means of tissue imaging in their local health centers (Mindel, 1997). Ultrasonography has demonstrated unique potential for improving early evaluation and management of trauma patients (Kotlyar & Moore, 2008; Shah et al., 2009).

Studies have shown that e-FAST is highly sensitive (94.9%) when performed by experienced clinicians making it preferable to conventional radial nuclear imaging such as CT and X-ray. (Bloom & Gibbons., 2022; Cheung). However, there is a paucity of data on the clinical utility of e-FAST when performed by non-experts yet these lead the provision of care in emergency departments (EDs) in low resource countries (Savatmongkornkul et al., 2017). Consequently, the survival of critically ill trauma patients heavily relies on the skills of these less-experienced general practitioners (Westerman).

There is lack of a standardized training duration for e-FAST, studies have reported varying training durations ranging from hours to days (Buaprasert et al., 2021; Mohammad et al., 2014; Savatmongkornkul et al., 2017). This lack of a standard results in discrepancies in knowledge acquired hence negatively affecting the diagnostic competence of the trainees. Establishing whether a 2-day training course is adequate to effectively build the competence of clinicians with no prior ultrasound experience to perform e-FAST is essential to standardizing e-FAST training. Despite the high sensitivity and specificity of e-FAST in the diagnosis of traumatic injuries, its uptake in low-resource countries is limited partly because of a lack of equipment and evidence on its clinical utility especially if applied by clinicians with no prior ultrasonography experience yet these form the bulk of the health care workforce in these clinical settings (Basnet et al., 2020). Training these frontline general practitioners in the e-FAST application has the potential to greatly improve patient care in this setting.

Project planning

Describe the community needs that your project will address.

Using ultrasound technology to detect torso trauma including hemothorax, hemoperitoneum, hemopericardium, and pneumothorax in trauma patients at the bedside. Trauma is one of the leading causes of mortality and loss of productive years worldwide with the highest trauma burden being in low and middle-income countries.

Diagnosis of torso injuries is a challenge in low income countries due to limited access to computed tomographic (CT) scan which is technically the gold standard. Furthermore, the use of CT scan is associated with immense costs, exposure to radiation, overcrowding of emergency departments due long waiting lists, and need to first stabilize or sedate some patients before being transferred to radiology departments for imaging (Whiteman C, 2014). Chest X-ray which is a more accessible imaging test in low income settings has remarkable limitations too including; radiation exposure, poor sensitivity, relatively high costs and unsuitable for unstable trauma patients who require transfer to X-ray rooms.

How did your project team identify these needs?

Dr. Ashkon and Dr. Eric of Atlas Global from Los Angeles USA, visited Uganda and Mbale in an effort to distribute portable ultrasound scanners and later connected with Dr. Mary and Joseph at Makerere Medical school. Reference was made to the research made by Dr. Dickson Kamoga SUBMITTED IN PARTIAL FULFILMENT OF THE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE AWARD OF MASTER OF MEDICINE IN EMERGENCY MEDICINE DEGREE OF MAKERERE UNIVERSITY.

How were members of the benefiting community involved in finding solutions?

The first engagement was made in Mbale when Dr. Ashkon and Eric visited. Follow up engagements were made with all referral hospitals.

How were community members involved in planning the project?

Dr. Dickson Kamoga in his research visited and quotes other Doctors from a number of referral hospitals as indicated in the Background Statement.
